Hildebrand Explains Why Game Was Called

George Hildebrand, umpire-in-chief behind the plate in the second game of the World Series at the Polo Grounds yesterday, made the following statement today:

"I conferred with Mr. Klem as to whether it would be safe to play further as early as the beginning of the ninth inning. At the end of the ninth we agreed it would be dangerous to go beyond the tenth, as the game had been dragging and some of the innings were very long. It was hard to judge balls and strikes fairly and some of the players were complaining.

"I notified Hugh Jennings for the Giants and Everett Scott for the Yankees that the game would be called at the end of the tenth.

"We were afraid to risk trouble in case of an accident. If anything had happened we would have been blamed, and no one else.

"The authority rested with us."

ROGERS' APOLOGY REJECTED BY GIRL

Miss Bailey Wants Justice to Make Amends Personally in Open Court

HER LAWYERS MARK TIME

Judge Joseph P. Rogers' apology to Miss Agnes C. Bailey for remarks addressed to her in court, which she considered insulting, is not satisfactory to the young woman because not made to her personally.

At her home, 707 Westinghouse avenue, Germantown, this morning, Miss Bailey said she would insist upon the apology being repeated when she is present in court on Tuesday.

"I can't consider his statement in open court as an apology to me at all, because I was not present," she said.

"It was very considerate of him to make such a statement in open court, of course, but since it was I who was insulted and not the court, I think it should be made to me personally."

"I went there for justice, but instead I suffered persecution and humiliation," Miss Bailey said.

"Judge Rogers said he would pay $500 bail for perjury, saying that I was not telling the truth when I said that I owned the car and that it was purchased by my uncle."

'CUPID'S LIFT' HAS FIRST PASSENGERS TO ESCAPE ARREST

Mayor Takes Initial Ride, but Prospective Honeymooners Take First Honors

'HAMPY' LOSES A RACE CAUGHT IN BLOCK'S CHASE

Mayor Moore and other officials were the first to ride in City Hall's new "honeymoon express" elevator today, but the real honors fell to a physician and his fiancée.

Dr. Earl B. French, 315 South Fifty-first street, and Myrtle G. Craig, 122 Highland avenue, Lansdowne, were ushered to the "express" a minute after it was placed in commission.

Benjamin Burton, the operator whose car is the prospective honeymooners' mode of transport, grinned broadly when the young couple came to the elevator.

"You have the honor of being the first couple to ride in this car," he told Dr. French, who sensed the situation at once and beamed on Miss Craig.

The incident prepared them for the cameramen lying in ambush on the fourth floor of City Hall, Miss Craig blushing beamingly and then posed in the elevator with Dr. French.

The physician told the marriage license clerk he was thirty-four years old and that he has been a widower thirteen years. He is a graduate of Syracuse University. Miss Craig is twenty-four years old.

They will be married Thursday at 4 P. M. by the Rev. William Boyd in the First Presbyterian Church, Lansdowne.

EX-DRY CHIEF DEAD, FOUR HURT IN CRASH AS "PARTY" SEQUEL

C. W. Walton Killed, Two Women Injured in Accident on White Horse Pike

FINED AS RECKLESS DRIVER HOUR BEFORE FATALITY

Police Say That Drinking Preceded Wreck—Victim Had Croix de Guerre

Charles Wayne Walton, of Woodbury, N. J., a Croix de Guerre holder, was killed and four companions were injured this morning at 7 o'clock when the automobile in which they were returning from Atlantic City hit a telephone pole on the White Horse pike, near Elwood.

The injured are:

Mrs. Ray Flannery, twenty-five years old, of Gloucester, who has been visiting her mother at 1712 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, fractured hip.

Miss Grace Mittl, twenty-six, Thirtieth street near Susquehanna avenue, internal injuries.

Jacob Muller, twenty-eight, Woodbury, three broken ribs and fractured thigh.

Lloyd Pearson, twenty-seven, Woodbury, fractured ribs.

According to the State police at Hammonton, the party were returning from an all-night trip, during which there had been drinking. The damaged speedometer on the car indicated the machine was traveling sixty-five miles an hour when the accident occurred.

Warned Not to Drive Car

Mr. Walton, who owned and drove the car, had been fined $30 for reckless driving in Atlantic City only an hour before the fatal crash. The magistrate had also directed him not to touch the wheel again.

Mr. Walton, who was twenty-seven years old, was manager of an ice plant in Woodbury, and was the son of Charles Walton, of the Gloucester County Board of Freeholders. He was a veteran prohibition officer and was in the war he was decorated for bravery by both the French and American Governments, winning not only the Croix de Guerre, but the R. C.

Joseph Ashdown, who conducts a garage on the pike about 100 yards from the accident, heard Mr. Walton's car crash into the pole. He took the injured to Eggleston Hospital in a truck, but Mr. Walton died before reaching there. His back had been broken and a part of the steering gear had pierced his lungs.

One Woman Escaped

The third woman in the party was Miss Nan Newton, twenty-seven years old, who lives in Port Richmond. She was uninjured.

Mr. Walton and his friends left Philadelphia yesterday afternoon and spent the night in Atlantic City. Mr. Walton's home today, his mother said she did not know where he had gone. She fainted when told he had been killed.

Mrs. Martha Flannery, mother of Mrs. Ray Flannery, said her daughter left the house yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock and told her she was going to the party at night at the home of Miss Newton.

A telephone call from the Eggleston Hospital was the first word Mrs. Walton heard that her daughter was not in Port Richmond.

NO RAIN IN PHILADELPHIA. SAYS LOCAL WEATHERMAN

Holds Out No Immediate Hope for Visit From Jupiter Pluvius

It is raining today—in Atlanta, Ga. That's the near-downtown Philadelphia. While the weather was a little cloudy in this city today and there was a slight trace of dampness in the air, the forecaster says these signs do not augur rain.

Farmers and others looking anxiously for rain may be heartened in the fact that the rain area is gradually increasing. For many days it hovered around Alabama and Florida and the other Gulf States. Its approach to Atlanta indicates a northerly course, which may hope will continue in speedy fashion.

The last substantial rain in Philadelphia occurred on September 12, when the fall was .67 of an inch. There was a slight drizzle on September 24, amounting to .05 of an inch.

Rain Soon to Break Continued Drought

Washington, Oct. 6.—(By A. P.)—Major changes in atmospheric pressures across the country cast the Mississippi upset the dope in the Weather Bureau today, and showers generally in the Eastern States will start by the long drought that has gripped most of the North.

Weather Bureau officials were taken with surprise completely, they said, when the sudden change was observed. Disturbances which will provide the parched countryside with refreshing showers originated in Northern Canada.

By Saturday night or Sunday night, according to today's forecast, moderate rains should have afforded relief to the Atlantic and Southern States generally.

33 BODIES ARE RECOVERED

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 6.—The Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, choir singer and wife of James Mills, the sexton, were seen walking at night at Forty-second street and Broadway, New York, by a prominent member of the church.

This was revealed this afternoon by A. M. Bookman, Somerset County prosecutor, as one of the most interesting of recent developments in the investigation of the double murder of minister and choir singer, who were slain September 14 at the Phillips farm.

The name of this "dollar of the church," as Mr. Bookman called him, was not given out. It is inferred that the information came from a man and that it was given voluntarily.

I asked why my informant did not follow the couple, said Mr. Bookman, and this person said: "My God, man, I was glued to the ground by the sight."

Mr. Bookman's informant manages to free his tongue from the same paralysis, however, on his return to New Brunswick.

CURZON VISITS PARIS TO BREAK PEACE DEADLOCK

British Minister Hurries From London to Discuss Position With Poincare

MUDANIA PARLEY WAITS ON RESULT OF INTERVIEW

French Stand by Turks in Their Demand for Occupation of Thrace

SITUATION STILL SERIOUS

Paris Protests to Greece Against Sending Fresh Forces to Adrianople

London, Oct. 6.—The Mudania conference is not ended, it was officially stated at the conclusion of the British Cabinet meeting this morning, but it is deadlocked and cannot be resumed before the British and French Governments have conferred over the situation.

Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, will leave immediately for Paris to see Premier Poincare.

It was also officially stated, in rough outline, that from the British point of view the Turks are demanding more than was offered in the allied note, and, on the other hand, that they were not accepting the conditions of that note.

The allied generals who went to Constantinople from Mudania to consult with the allied high commissioners were to return to Mudania on the Iron Duke this afternoon. The French high commissioner at Constantinople contended that the Mudania conference would be resumed today, a dispatch says. The allied commissioners conceded that the situation is very serious.

Curzon's Visit Amicable One

Lord Curzon's visit to Paris is an amicable one, and he is carrying instructions from the British cabinet to urge the French to adhere at least to the clauses of the allied notes which would bar the Turks from insisting upon entering Thrace before the conclusion of the peace conference.

One interpretation of the French support of the Turks at Mudania in their desire for the immediate occupation of Thrace is that the British are willing for a compromise by which French troops, instead of Turkish, would occupy Thrace. It is pointed out that the Turks might consent to such an arrangement if the British would consent to the French to have long been tenaciously fighting for a hold on Thrace which would counterbalance the English fleet's dominance of the Straits. If this compromise is obtained, the Mudania conference may proceed to dispose of the Greek delegate's protest.

It is contended that there is one element in the British cabinet which is inclined to take a pessimistic view of the situation, holding that every delay at the present postpones the prospect of a reasonable settlement. It is pointed out that the British cabinet has been inclined to take a pessimistic view of the situation, holding that every delay at the present postpones the prospect of a reasonable settlement. It is pointed out that the British cabinet has been inclined to take a pessimistic view of the situation, holding that every delay at the present postpones the prospect of a reasonable settlement.

Dispute Center on Thrace

The British Cabinet today debated a statement in its entirety, but the main point appeared to be the question of Thrace. The British view is that there should be some consideration given the Greek minority population there and when the Mudania elements there were permitted to enter.

There seems to be no difficulty over the question of the Chalk area which the British have been occupying. The British policy is the same as it has been since the Greek debacle, which means that the British are opposed to the Turks crossing the Straits before the peace conference.

The Greek attitude in Thrace continues to be an important factor. The Greeks are threatening to fight for Thrace, and it would be unwise for the British to take a possible argument against the Turkish attitude.

Adjustment of the Mudania conference came suddenly yesterday after a dramatic passage in which Samet Pasha, representing the Ankara Government, demanded that the Turks be allowed to occupy Eastern Thrace as a precedent to the Greek proposal to occupy the western part of the peninsula.

That the Turkish demand had been duly weighed and calculated is evidenced by the almost simultaneous receipt of an Ankara dispatch, quoting Mustafa Kemal Pasha as declaring before the National Assembly: "The evacuation and surrender of Thrace must occur immediately, especially as since the Greek revolution the Muslim subjects are in great danger."

Samet Pasha's bombshell was followed by another when the French delegates announced they were instructed to support the Turkish demand. This created

New York, Oct. 6.—Walter Hoyt, youthful hurler of the Yankee staff, is Miller Huggins' selection to work against the Giants in the third game of the well known and widely advertised World Series today.

Hoyt won nineteen games and lost twelve during the season and is one of the Huggins dependables. Last year he was the Yankee pitching hero in the series. He hurled twenty-seven innings against McGraw's minions in 1921 and won two of his three games.

Giant fans realize that the National League face a tough proposition in Hoyt and the one game edge which they hold on the Yankees is about the only thing which buoy their confidence.

The mite manager made known his pitching choice early, but McGraw was doubtful about his twirler for today. He gave no intimation of his choice until game time.

May Select Ryan

"I have McQuillan and Scott both ready to start," said Mr. Graw, "and don't forget that 'Rosey' Ryan looked pretty good in the way my team is going and our pitching has been good."

Miller Huggins will probably follow his fixed program of starting his five-star pitching staff in order, unless the Giants elect to pitch by knocking some hurp unexpectedly into the discard. Huggins' plan contemplates Hoyt today, Carl Mays tomorrow and Sam Jones on Sunday. Rush, with a five-day rest, will then be fit for Monday.

"I'm not worrying over my pitching," said Huggins, "but the batting slump the Giants are in, and the way they are coming out of it, would win this series."

Though the crowd has been big at the games, with every seat taken, the attendance has been marked by the absence of the early rushes to the ball park and today was no exception. Scarcely 1000 spectators were in line when the game opened at 2 o'clock today and after they had been seated the early arrivals trickled in slowly.

Weather Cooler

The day was warm and clear and a light breeze from the north wuffed away the heavy October haze that has been bothering the city since the night game on during the late innings of play. It was cooler "than yesterday," said a perfect baseball weather.

The Giants were in the home folks today and were first on the field for batting practice. Mantua Man Feared K. K. K. After Row—Squire and Constable Held Arlington P. Walls, a farmer of Mantua, N. J., was shot in the arm while fleeing at night through fields and woods from men he thought were Ku Klux Klansmen. When caught, he learned a justice of the peace and a constable were among his pursuers.

Justice of the Peace Gaither and Constable Richard Wood had a warrant charging Walls with assault and battery on a woman. Walls, his housekeeper and joint owner of his farm.

When the officials, accompanied by Harry West, the woman's son, reached the Walls farm at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, the farmer thought they were "regulators" bent on punishing him because he had quarreled with his housekeeper.

Walls fled from his home, pursued by the three men. He said shots were fired after him as he ran across a road and reached a heavily wooded section. The constable was dodged back and forth, eluding his pursuers, until they separated and outflanked him.

The farmer was taken at the Woodbury house in the Louisa, West, his housekeeper and joint owner of his farm.

Three Former Charges at Allentown Resulted in Mistrials

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 6.—(By A. P.)—Harry A. Butterweck, real estate operator, who was arraigned on the fourth charge growing out of his realty business, selling a bogus mortgage to the Rev. Neri P. Boger, of Slatington, was found guilty today.

The clerks hurried out to the corridor and piled into the cars, while the Mayor and his party entered the fourth.

"We'll have a race and see who wins," the Mayor called out.

"We have a mayor with us now," they told Mr. Moore.

The cars started, the Mayor's reaching the ground floor last, due either to the carelessness or the "collision" of the operator.

The waiting crowd of clerks chorused: "Well, we beat you."

"I haven't been the first time," the Mayor replied. There were more cheers and the clerks went back to work.
